This is also a great year for stealing thunder and the clothes of politicians in swimming.

In Mexico few presidents die, but under present circumstances the inaugural perferred seems to be a resignation.

SOMETIMES Democracy is spelled with a big D, sometimes with a little d, and sometimes, if too radical, with a prefix of two d's.

THE sale of the Clapp property and its practical breaking up into various parcels of gas, oil and timber lands destroys one of the most interesting points in the oil country. Of course the chief interest was in the personality of the man who so long controlled it, and carried on the laborious and substantial improvements that appealed to him. Mr. Clapp was a dreamer. It was the one intense desire of his heart to have his hotel a Mecca for those who wished to enjoy the views he enjoyed, and to admire all that he found there as he lived year after year looking out at the lonely and to many gloomy, green bordered landscape. He confided, when picturesque Horse creek began to lure the people that he "should think when people went away from home they would want to go out of sight of the house." If he had lived to an extreme old age he might have realized the dream and the hope. Everywhere people along the Allegheny are enjoying it more and more each year.—Oil City Blizzard.

Mystery Surrounds Tionesta Dam.

The proposed water power project that is designed to back up the waters of Tionesta creek and Clarion river so as to submerge the valley to the exclusion of all the present and future development in a large and important part of two counties seems to warrant publicity since the scheme, if practicable, would affect large numbers of people and vast property interests which have rights to consider and if otherwise than practicable the publicity of it is all the more desirable. Why is it that so little information about the great deal is so difficult to obtain? Who stands ready to spend $30,000,000 to create so tremendous an undertaking? Who has become so suddenly imbued with the necessity of conserving fuel supply as to invest more money to build these three hundred foot high dams than would pay for most of the coal lands in Pennsylvania bituminous fields? Who is it that so philanthropically seeks to save the future generation from themselves, just at this time.—Kane Republican. These are pertinent questions which the Harrisburg authorities should insist upon having answered before so gigantic a scheme or outrage is even seriously considered.

W. C. T. U.

The yearly program adopted by the Tionesta Union is being carried out, the meetings are quite well attended, and the President, Mrs. Angus Carson, is putting forth every effort to make the year's work a success.

Splendid papers on the various subjects in which the organization is interested have been read, the following ones being especially worthy of note: Soldiers' and Sailors' Work, by Mrs. Jennie Agnew; Extracts from Hobson's Address, by Mrs. Myrtle Huling; Narcotics, by Mrs. Sigworth, and Scientific Temperance, by Mrs. J. E. Wenk.

The annual Due Social, combined with the Comfort Bag Social, was recently given at the W. C. T. U. headquarters. A large number of members were in attendance, and the program was distinctively educational.

Mrs. Wenk set forth the vital truths regarding Scientific Temperance in a most logical and convincing manner, and the value of the comfort bags to Uncle Sam's boys was emphasized by Mrs. Agnew and Mrs. Clara Haslet, both of whom spoke from personal knowledge. The comfort bags were filled under the direction of Mrs. Agnew, who as both county and local superintendent is untiring in her zeal, and under whose capable and enthusiastic leadership good work is being done. A solo by Mrs. Alice Shriver was much enjoyed, also the refreshments served by an excellent committee, Mrs. G. G. Gaston acting as chairman.

Chadman's Florida Letter.

PUNTA GORDA, FLORIDA, Feb. 25. This is Sunday and the sun is shining for a while. A light smart breeze is blowing from the east, fanning and cooling that spot on your double chin where old Sol got in some strenuous work yesterday. You all should know that this is the land of the perpetual tan, the peeling nose, and the dapple grey skin. The tennis girls come out every morning with an additional coat of enamel, and the feminine yachting brigade lay on a coat of highly colored cosmetics and red and white amorphous powder so thick that one is compelled to scrape off a square inch in order to determine whether his complexion is Caucasian, Mongolian, Moslem, or Schlemiel. But not all the ladies regard that as a way I reckon; there are several who don't.

But, as I said before, and I now insist upon it, to-day is Sunday and let us all be charitable. Let us look out the window and see the long line of fishing rods on their way to the pier. Look at proud Daddy coming down the avenue stepping to the beat of the church bell, with a fine new rod and reel in his left hand, his right holding to a tapering whip-lash of seven white-robed children, and the astily dressed mother in the rear. They all stop in front of the church; the minister shakes hands with Daddy and examines the rod and reel. Daddy goes down into his jeans and fatches up a handful of chink which he apportions among his eager progeny according to the demands made by the different Sunday school teachers the week before, and which the progeny have not forgotten. As soon as the wife and children are settled inside Daddy takes off in the direction of the white-capped bay and joins the procession of anglers. He will troll back and forth ever and anon yanking in a big whirling cat, a horrible looking fish, a sleek long robalo, a fine black-spotted sea trout, a whiting, a pompano, or one of a hundred species, and his conscience will be as clear and serene as the Forest county sky in June.

And that gives an idea of social life in newly settled localities. The freedom, the democracy, the ab-sence of cant, caste, and hypocrisy, appeal to the broad mind and the liberty-loving soul. Daddy will leave the dock when the church bell notifies him that the services are over. He will select from his catch several of the most savory fish and let the others go to the gulls and the pelicans. He will arrive at the church as the people pour out and compare his catch with that of a dozen others. Then houseward with the catch and the family, the fish he will clean in a jiffy and slam into the pan, and that family will dine with astonishing appetites, the master and kids from the exercise in serving the Lord one way and the pater from another. But I didn't intend this letter should develop into a Talmage sermon. Mighty few would take a look at it if it did, hey, what? Let me yell into your ear trumpet that Florida is not a poor man's paradise or a rich man's playground. Like the land in any other State it must be cleared and cultivated and fertilized. There are sunshine and flowers here in abundance but they make a mighty slim menu. Most all the temperate, semi-tropical and tropical grains and fruits can be grown here, but they do not grow spontaneous. There are more fish in the sea and bays along the shores than the people will ever be able to catch, and yet a real estate firm in Chicago is said to be "angling for suckers," using as bait, "perpetual sunshine and flowers," "how to make $2,000 a year on 5 acres of land without work," and so forth.

But, my old how quick space is exhausted. Just a word about that proposed Tionesta dam. I read Mr. Collins' article in the REPUBLICAN with much interest. His opinion and judgment in the matter should carry great weight. We are all familiar with the story of the mill by the dam site. This dam will likely go the same way, should it ever be built, but the destruction in this instance would be greater than one mill by a dam site.

That story how I caught the pelican is true, and it has been copied into a great many papers. I have the big fellow tamed now. Dr. and Mrs. Peirce of Warren were here last week, and Mrs. Peirce came over and took a number of photos of "Hook." I send one along so's you'll see that this is not the usual Florida bull con. The Peirces started North last week, the Doctor having had a lot of sport hunting. The rays of the sun are becoming hotter than our quality of hides can stand, and by the middle of March the North bound train will be laden with the hobo, the straggler, the wanderer and the tourist—all members of the same family of restless spirits.

Expert Writers With Penant Contenders For North American.

Every baseball fan knows of George M. Graham, sporting editor of The North American. No baseball writer of Philadelphia has a wider acquaintance through Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. This circle of friendships grows out of the attention Mr. Graham has given to the minor baseball leagues. His identity with the Tri-state covers a period of seven years, and has been closely in touch with the Susquehanna, Atlantic, New York and other organizations.

Mr. Graham is now in the south with the Athletics at San Antonio, Tex., covering the spring training trip. His accounts appear daily and Sunday in The North American, and give full details of the work of the men with whom Manager Mack hopes to win another pennant and perhaps world's championship.

But, while covering the Athletics in good time, The North American is not overlooking the Phillies. James C. Isaminger, The North American's noted baseball humorist, is with Dootie's team, and is a daily contributor. Order now to get the best accounts of the preliminary work of the two big league Philadelphia clubs.

36 DEAD AFTER PRISON REVOLT. Twenty-five Said to Have Been Executed at Monterey.

Laredo, Texas.—Thirty-six lives paid the penalty of a revolt in the penitentiary at Monterey, according to incoming passengers. The passengers said that six prisoners were killed during the outbreak, and twenty-five others regarded as ringleaders, were executed.

The passengers were unable to tell how the other 30 victims were killed.

Ozona, Florida.

A few words about Ozona and its environs. I thought, might interest your readers. Having spent four weeks at St. Petersburg, we are now passing the rest of our stay in Florida at Ozona, and we have not regretted the change. It is a small place but beautifully located. So near the Gulf of Mexico that we get the benefit of the salty air, while the beach runs out quite a distance at low tide, but at high tide fish, which are mostly "mullet," are seen around the dock. Red fish, trout and sheepsheads are caught in seines by the fishermen for the market, but can be taken with hook and line, excepting the mullet. Oysters live all along the beach and can be had for the gathering of them. Speckled perch and black bass can be caught in Lake Butler, which is four miles from here, and is also the home of "One-Eyed Riley," (an old alligator.)

This is a great bathing place for people who are not accustomed to deep water. The beach goes out so gradually to deep water, making it fine wading for the more timid. Hog and Shell Islands are a few miles away and protect us from big storms from the west. Shelling parties very often go over in motor and sail boats and spend the day "shelling." There are quite a few places of interest about Ozona and Sutherland college. A short walk brings you to Walla Springs, which has been made into a splendid bathing place. The spring water is warm, as all springs are in Florida, and the big boiling spring at Sea Side is a new resort just started by Mr. Duatt of Tionesta. This spring boils up out of the ocean a half mile from shore at the rate of thousands of barrels per minute, and is supposed to be an underground river. The Blue Lick Spring is also a beautiful place. The water is blue and the white sand gives it a striking effect. A jug was lowered in this spring 160 feet and found no bottom. The aerial moose hanging from the oaks gives the scenery a weird look as it swings to and fro in the wind, and the palmetto, cabbage-palms and pine trees give the Blue Lick Springs a most picturesque appearance. The palmetto is being gradually dug out and the orange tree is taking its place.

Grape fruit is coming to the front very fast as an article of profit to the grower of citrus fruits. Ozona has a more fertile soil than most parts of Florida. Garden truck can be cultivated to a good advantage with less fertilizing than in most places. Most of the growers make money out of their groves. There have been shipped from this vicinity 130,000 boxes of oranges and grape fruit this season. I think alfalfa would do well here. Eggs are a good price and so are chickens, which are selling, live weight, at 20 cents the pound. The razor-backed hog is a commercial commodity, and his bacon companion, the flea, will give you all the "pointers" you want.

The flowers and shrubbery are surely something fine. The roses and poinsettias are beautiful, while the oleander trees, 15 feet high, the Australian silk oak, the chinkberry and amorphous trees, magnolia, all flowering trees, are most luxuriant. The red-bird and the mocking bird are singing sweetly, while peil cans, cranes and curlews are busy catching their morning meal of fish.

Baseball at Clarion.

Thursday evening the Clarion Pirates and the Wallace County teams met for a baseball game in which the locals trimmed them to the tune of 26 to 11. The game was exciting from start to finish. The shooting of field goals by D. Hensley, Williams and Davis of the locals and the local shooting by A. Cartwright, who got 7 out of 10 tals, were the features. The guarding of Royer and J. Hensley kept the visitors from shooting. The locals were never worried. They passed the ball nicely. A good many fouls were called on the locals who played a little too rough. The line-up: Clarion Pirates 26 Wallace County 11 D. Hensley F A. Cartwright C Royer G C. Cartwright G Williams C Grant Royer G C. Cartwright G Field goals—D. Hensley 5, Davis 3, Williams 3, Ray Buck 2. Fouls—A. Cartwright 7, D. Hensley 2, Williams 2. Referee, Walters; Umpire, Cassatt; Timekeeper, Walters; scorer, W. Hensley.

The Sigel school team was defeated on the Clarion floor by the Pirates on Friday evening, March 1, by a score of 37 to 15. The line up: Sigel 15 Clarion Pirates 37 Williams F Hensley C Gumbart Walters C Sharp J. Hensley G Hoy Davis G Ackley Goals—Walters 9, D. Hensley 2, Williams 3, Davis 1, J. BRANDT LEAVES TOILS.

Thirty-Year Prisoner Now Free to Go Where He Will.

New York.—The last formality that stood between Foulke E. Brandt and freedom on bail was complied with when the man who was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment for burglary signed a bail bond for $2,500 on the second charge of assault growing out of his attack upon Mortimer L. Schiff, his former employer.

Brandt is now bonded in the sum of $7,500 for trial on both the burglary and the assault indictments. He is free to go where he will pending decision on the appeal from Supreme Court Justice Gerard's ruling on the writ of habeas corpus.

CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR TURKS.

Long and Severe Battle Near Homs in Tripoli.

Rome.—The Italian troops inflicted a severe defeat on the Turkish forces and their Arab allies, with great loss. The battle took place at Mount Mergh, some distance inland. The Italians put the Turks to flight, storming the heights. The loss of the Turks and Arabs is very heavy. The Italians lost only eleven men killed and eighty-two wounded.

"Marry me?" said the duke. "But, duke," responded the heiress, "I feel somewhat committed to the count." "Have no regrets on that score. I gave the count a five-dollar note and bought him off."

Porkey.

Our village has been spared this long from the danger of the ice going out, and the big dam has not yet been started, so we are still on the same side. The weather has been in our favor and we hope everybody will thank the right One for this. The ice is only about half as thick as it was before the rain of a week ago, and should this weather continue there will probably be no damage when the ice goes out. We hope this will happen so that our commerce will not be detained, for this gives the outside fertile brains an opening to make fun of us "waybackers." We appreciate our location on this green earth and are satisfied with all the privileges we get way back here. Should the big dam flood us out in the valley we will build arks and still float around this part and enjoy what our neighbors do at the seaside. It will require no licence on the dam and we can surely get what we want anywhere on water. Of course we do not look for this great water here as we understand the object a little different than most of the people do. We were born to do robbing and anything crooked to make money, but having hired out to the much abused Standard some years ago, it made us lose those born ideas and become honest and upright. Some of the readers do not believe that, but it is the truth.

Miss Anna Burdick has severed her residence from the Rupert home and will help at her own home, where her mother has been again hurt by a fall on the icy path at Hastings. She had been with us over a month and finds ours a model town.

Our trains were a little detained Friday by a mix-up near Kingsley, but made their trips in fair shape, so that no grumbling could result. Telephone connections were disturbed and it made the management wonder where they were for a time, but later everything came out all right.

Howard Donley and Fred Campbell, of Mayburg, were visitors at the Rupert home Sunday for a short time.

Mrs. Rupert was taken sick Saturday and it was necessary to call the doctor in the evening and her condition was improved before midnight. She is still in bed Sunday. Cause, a bad cold settling in the bowels.

A new three-and-a-half-by-ten foot blackboard was put in the large room here Saturday, which will give enough surface for the large class in arithmetic to illustrate their work in better shape than heretofore.

MOVE TO INVESTIGATE GREAT TEXTILE STRIKE

Show Congressional Committee Children Injured in Mills—Cavalry Disperse Crowds.

Lawrence, Mass.—Three events of importance marked the recent progress of the textile workers' strike. First, Mayor Scanlon made a request, which virtually amounts to a demand, upon the mill owners to end the strike, and pointed out the way by which he thought it could be done.

Second, arrangements were completed for the sending of a party of textile workers to Washington to appear before a Congressional committee, as suggested by Representative Berger of Milwaukee.

Third, the Federal investigation into the acts of the local authorities and the military in preventing the sending of strikers' children to Philadelphia, in possible violation of the Interstate Commerce law, began and it was announced another Federal investigation into wage and living conditions would be under way soon.

An incident was the activity of mounted troops in breaking up a gathering of women strikers, in which nobody was hurt.

The Mayor took a hand in the battle between capital and labor by going to Boston to consult William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company, and the treasurer of the other mills at Lawrence to request them to end the strike.

More than fifty men, women and children comprised the party for Washington. Of this number more than half were children, the plan being to send two from each of the eighteen nationalities represented on the strike committee. The children selected, all of whom are over fourteen years of age, are themselves mill workers on strike. In some instances they bear scars from injuries sustained while at work. Among the number is a girl who had her scalp torn off by a machine. It is charged that the mill owners recompensed them in no way.

Dynamite Under Lawrence Train.

Philadelphia.—Nineteen sticks of dynamite were found in the Philadelphia & Reading freight yards here attached to the trucks of a freight car which passed through Lawrence, loaded with paper, consigned to the Garrett-Buchanan Company, at 18 South Sixth street.

It is believed the dynamite was attached to the car trucks at Lawrence for the purpose of blowing up the entire freight train, in which there were thirty cars of woolen goods, consigned to the American Woolen Company, the corporation against which the strikers are most bitter.

Through each stick of dynamite had been run a piece of wire, evidently with the design that as soon as the wheel wore away the paper the steel-rimmed wheel would strike the wire, causing a spark, that would cause an explosion.

By a miscalculation the person who placed the dynamite failed to tie the sticks close enough to the wheel.

Mrs. N. A. Christenson, who has been ill for some time, is no better at present writing. Her daughter, Emma, who has been attending school in Warren, was called home to care for her, and also for the younger brother, Raymond, who has been sick for nearly a year.

Our young folks called on Lee Farnsworth, Wednesday evening, and had a jolly time.

Andrew Christenson was up from Kelleysville to see his mother Sunday.

The elderly folks of Cherrygrove are not inclined to stay at home and tend the babies all the time, as is clearly shown by the number of amusements planned by them. Through to be sure, the "younger folks" most always go along—and so do the babies.

The last "blow-out" was a surprise party for Mrs. John Christenson at her home, Tuesday. A luxurious dinner was served at noon, and as we could well expect, it was a success and enjoyed by all present.

Harry Christenson and Bessie Sigworth were getting the full benefit of the nice sleighing Sunday. Say, won't everyone miss the "school m'ams" when they leave us?

Dr. Hamilton of Warren made a professional call at the home of N. A. Christenson, Sunday.

Mrs. John Paul returned to her home in Mayburg, after a few days' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Vanberg, over Sunday.

Misses Anna and Elizabeth Allaire came home today to spend Sunday with their parents. They returned to Fools Creek in the afternoon.
